

Regionalization Plans in New York State

Challenges for School Districts

New York State is facing significant challenges within and across communities in preparing all students for college, career, and civic readiness, including:

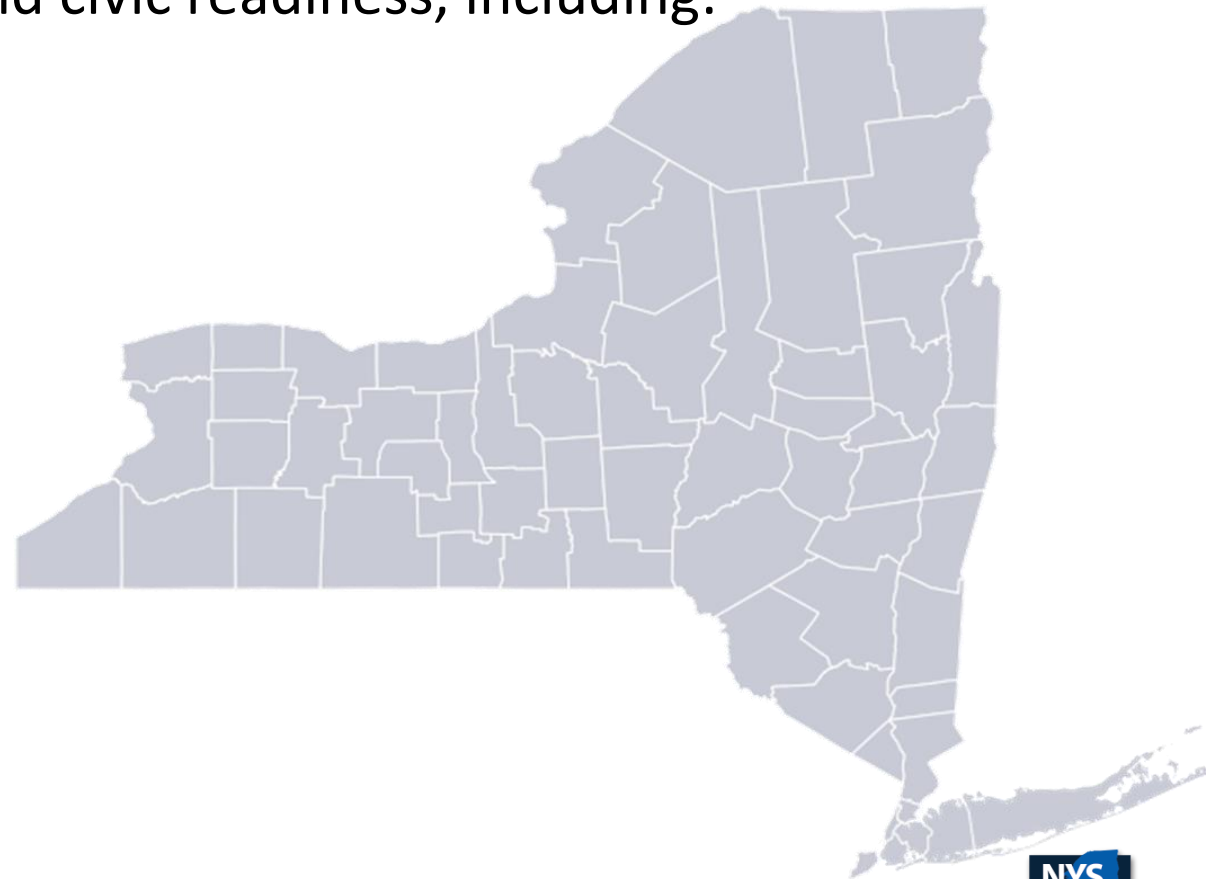

Student access to high-quality educational opportunities

Fiscal constraints

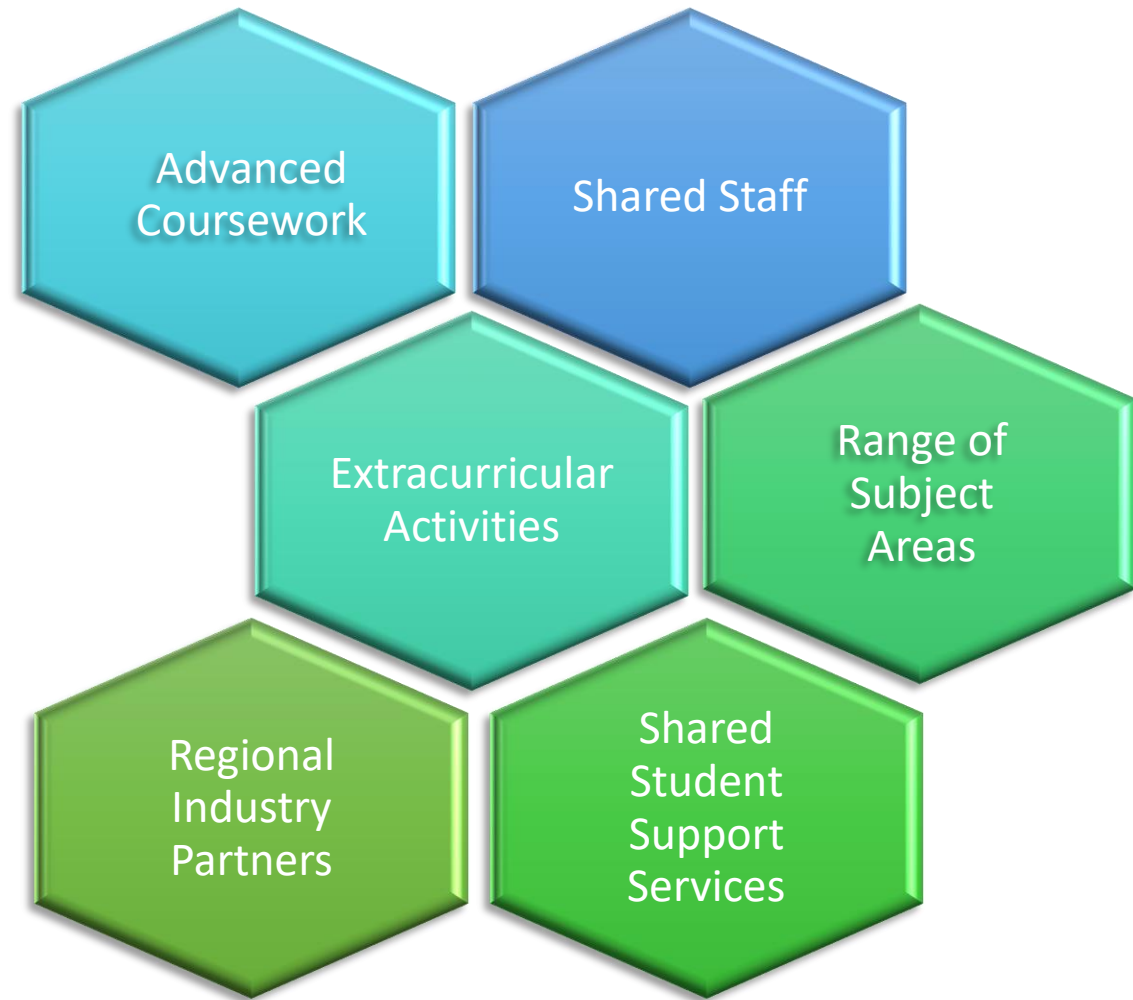

Graduation measures initiative

Regionalization as an Opportunity and Strength

Regionalization is a collaborative model for addressing student needs and exploring operational efficiencies where districts can engage in conversations and partner with others around a variety of solutions, such as:

Regionalization is not reorganization

Time to act is now

Local solutions are needed for local problems

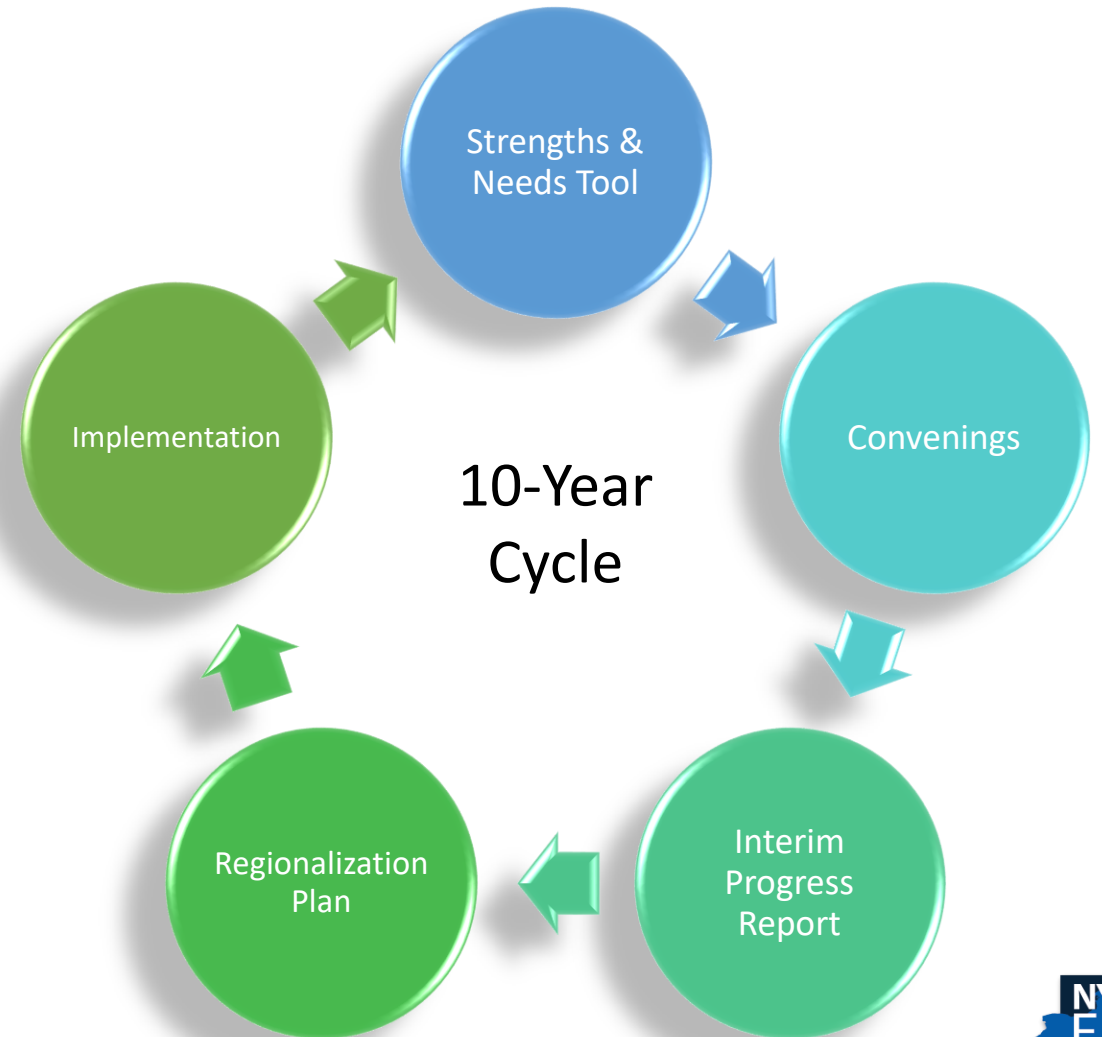

Collaboration is essential in a 21st century global economy

No single district can engage in this work alone
